

CREATURE'S BAND WINS A TRIUMPH

Concert an Epoch in Washington Musical History.

THRILLS LARGE AUDIENCE

Applause and Encores Mark the Evening—Mme. Barilli Also Makes Many Friends.

Barely in the musical history of Washington has a local audience displayed such enthusiasm as that which marked the concert last night at the Columbia Theater of Creature and his Italian band. The event formed an epoch in local musical events, and the gifted leader and his corps of foreign musicians may go back to their native land with the knowledge that they have won the genuine regard of thoughtful music lovers at the National Capital.

The theater was crowded, and scarcely a number on the program would have been allowed to pass without an encore had the wishes of the audience prevailed.

It was a program to excite the interest of any lover of music, and at its conclusion one could but wonder at the genius of the eccentric leader, and the methods by which he inspired every player in his band to the utmost of his ability.

Scored a Success.

Assisting the band was a soprano soloist, Mme. Barilli, who has been heard before with Creature. Mme. Barilli gave a sympathetic reading of Gounod's familiar "Ave Maria" and was compelled to respond to a double encore.

To the great surprise of the audience, she gave "The Mocking Bird" as one of her extra numbers. Her pure, light, and extremely flexible voice was peculiarly adapted to this old-fashioned song, and the pleasure of those who listened in hearing a composition which was thought long ago to have been relegated to the background of vocal enterprises was manifest throughout its entire reading. Mme. Barilli scored a distinct success.

The chief feature of Creature's program was a series of Berlioz's "Damnation of Faust," in conducting more than ever demonstrated his exceptional musical intelligence and wonderful memory.

Not a line of music did he use here or there, but he made the program, and each little phrase from the prelude to the conclusion was as clearly drawn as the most exacting musician could desire. The Ballet of the Wisp which was characterized by a most pleasing and dainty conception, and the music was blended into one great crescendo to the concluding pandemonium formed a most complex musical triumph.

Storms of Applause.

The audience barely waited for the conclusion of the series to break into a storm of applause which lasted until Creature had appeared three times to acknowledge their approval.

Another number which measured close to the "Faust" selections was Weber's "Freischütz" overture, which was given with commanding precision and equal grace.

Only one unhappy selection was made by the band leader and that was the intermezzo from Cavalleria. The number is not designed for a band such as Creature carries, and its proper interpretation is almost impossible without strings.

Many have heard the familiar wedding march of Mendelssohn ground out on organ, piano, and by many musical organizations, but the reading given last night by Creature's band was such as to make everyone in the theater thrill with the beauty and power of the composition. Other selections were the Gavotte from "Mignon," Gile's "Echoes of the Ball," and selections from "Aida."

No Longer a Freak.

To those who have seen Creature before it was apparent that he has lost much of the eccentric motions which put him down as a handmaster.

While he still retains many of his characteristic gestures in directing his men, they no longer appeal to the auditor as motions calculated to excite derision. They are, instead, his own means of literally dragging from the audience mind every player in his organization the best that player can give, and if Creature does not succeed, it is because the audience is there. Many persons go to his concerts to see what he is like, but they invariably come away with the knowledge that they have heard and seen a genius.

OWNER OF COTTAGE LITTLE TOO FAST

Italian Ambassador Sold Out While Tenant.

Baron Mayor des Planches, the Italian ambassador, has been called to Atlantic City to settle trouble concerning a cottage he had leased there.

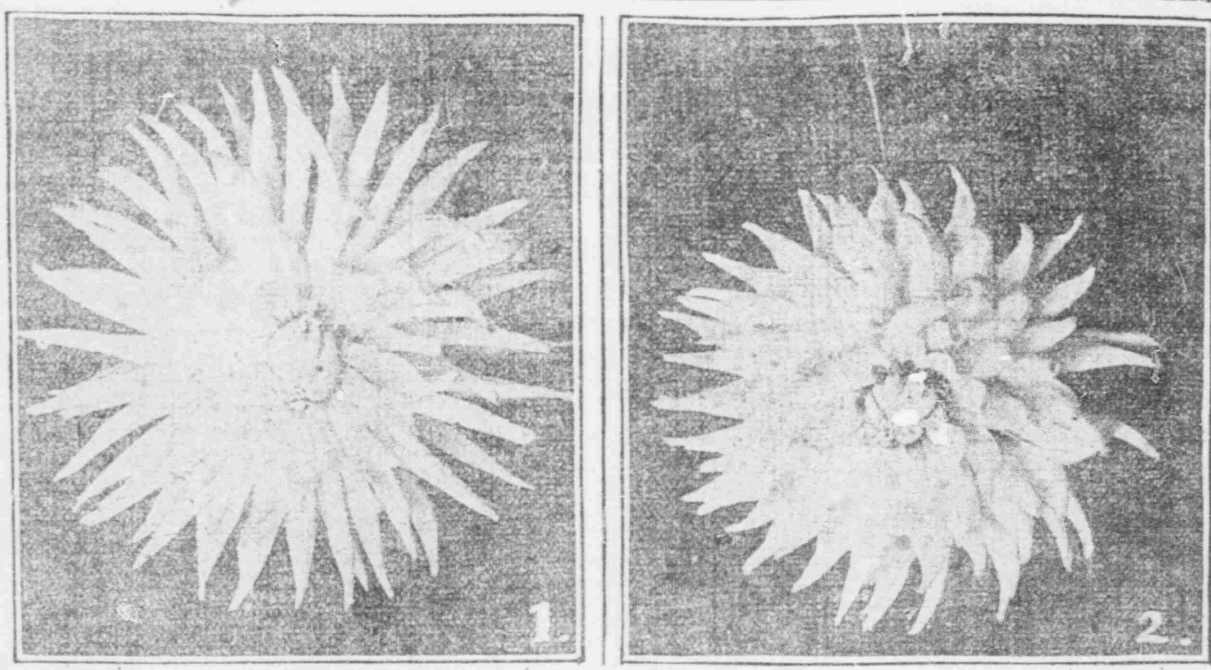

Owners of the property took possession of it before the ambassador gave it up, and as a result the State Department was called upon to decide the international questions involved in the legal tangle.

As any property leased by an ambassador immediately passes beyond the jurisdiction of American courts, Atlantic City justices of the peace and real estate dealers and agents who became hopelessly mixed up in what was an unwarranted invasion of foreign property, will probably go unpunished, because of a general misunderstanding and the ignorance of the principals of international questions involved in complications affecting an embassy.

Family Moves In.

John C. Risley, the owner of the property leased by the Italian ambassador, sold it to Mrs. Risley, who had been the ambassador's landlady. Not knowing that the ambassador's lease had not expired, an agent for Mrs. Cadmus took charge of the property and had a family moved into it. The embassy papers were still in the cottage, and there was much excitement when the ambassador's family moved in. The ambassador's family had not yet moved in, and the ambassador's family had not yet moved in.

WOODS TO ASSIST AT M'GUE TRIAL

Yields to Solicitation of Charlottesville People.

HAS SYMPATHY FOR ACCUSED

Ex-Mayor Will Be Arraigned Tomorrow—Change of Venue Will Provoke Legal Battle.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 25.—Capt. Micalah Woods, Commonwealth's attorney of Albemarle county, who has been solicited for several days to aid the Charlottesville attorney in the prosecution of J. Samuel McGue, charged with the murder of Mrs. McGue, today filed his answer, as follows:

"In response to petitions signed by nearly a thousand citizens of the city of Charlottesville and the county of Albemarle, and in deference to the large number of persons of men and women of the community, I have decided to aid Mr. Gilmer and Mr. Ker in the management of the case of the 'Commonwealth vs. McGue.'"

"No one would be more delighted than I to see the defendant in this case honorably relieved and cleared of the terrible crime with which he is charged, and I assume this responsibility with the sole purpose of seeking fearlessly for the truth, regardless of the personal inconveniences and sacrifices which will result to me, and in spite of the very disagreeable duties which will devolve upon me. The brutal murder of Mrs. McGue, whoever he may be, deserves no sympathy and should be executed under the law."

Yields to Solicitation.

"I think the case could be safely left in the hands of the attorney who represent the Commonwealth, yet I feel it to be my duty to a people who have hoped and trusted me since my youth to yield to their solicitations and to do all I can to see that the ends of justice are reached and that the majesty of the law may be maintained."

Over to the ability of the city Commonwealth attorney to cope with the three criminal lawyers representing the accused, and the petition bore more than 2,000 names. The arraignment will be tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The question of a change of venue is the most important at present. McGue's attorneys will undoubtedly ask for it on the ground that the prisoner's life is at hazard here, it having been necessary to maintain a guard around the jail for the past several days. The Commonwealth will fight any change bitterly, and with public sentiment against a change of venue, it is not believed that Judge Watts Morris will grant the request.

May Claim Insanity.

Daniel Harrison and Jack Lee, attorneys for McGue, returned this afternoon from Staunton, Va., where they have been at the Western State Hospital, seeking information regarding the sanity or insanity of the parents of the accused. Both men were silent today regarding their discoveries.

It is said that both Mr. and Mrs. McGue, as were confined in the asylum, but rumor has it that the former was sent to the asylum for murder, a plea of insanity having been entered. This cannot be confirmed. McGue was visited in his cell yesterday by members of the Protestant Church of this city, and religious services conducted. The prisoner seemed much affected.

When religious services were concluded the prisoner was asked if he cared to walk in the jail yard and answered in the affirmative. He showed no signs of his incarceration.

PRESIDENT IS HOST FOR REV. CHARLES WAGNER

The meeting tonight at the White House, therefore, will be of great interest, and a noteworthy one in many respects.

THOUSANDS HEAR FRENCHMAN TALK

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 25.—"Simpli-ly, brotherhood, love of God."

These were themes in services heard by congregations yesterday that overtaxed the great auditoriums of Bethany Protestant Church.

Charles Wagner, once an Abolition shepherd, later a Lutheran minister, now a preacher of the Simple Life in a Paris church that he will call "The Home of the Soul," was the guest of Bethany from 9 in the morning until 9 at night.

He spoke eleven times, and the total of his audiences in the various auditoriums exceeded 12,000 persons. He brought the long, fruitful day to a close by a brief address to the congregation of Grace Baptist Church, better known as the Temple, Broad and Berks Streets.

Greeted Twelve Hundred Men.

He first met the church leaders at 9 o'clock in the morning, and spoke earnestly to them upon the need for brotherly cooperation in forwarding Bethany's work. He was introduced by John Wanamaker, whose guest he has been for the last week.

More than 1,200 men gave him hearty welcome as he went into the meeting of Bethany's Men's Brotherhood, at 9:30. Every seat was taken, and hundreds sat on the steps of platforms, and stairways, or stood during the service. He participated in the greeting that was given to the Rev. William Patterson, pastor of Bethany, who has just returned from a health-restoring three months' visit to his boyhood home in Ireland.

Mr. Wanamaker conducted the service, at which more than a score of men gave testimony that they have been helped, and their lives made bright through God.

When the time came for commencement of the church service every nook and corner of the large building was occupied, and more than a thousand persons stood in the aisles and corridors, and thronged the sidewalks surrounding the church.

A Complete Service.

To describe fully the beauty, the impressiveness of the principal service, one must be able to convey the exquisite purity of children's voices, the fervor with which a thousand men of the Brotherhood sang words of praise to God, the pathos of a baptism ceremony in which a venerable man of God, in tones vibrant and with emotion gave to infants help to the Kingdom of God.

At the request of Mr. Wanamaker, he spoke briefly in French to those of that nationality who had come to hear him. He invited them to come forward after the service that he might shake their hands.

D. Dieker, Mr. Wanamaker, Prof. Koegel, of Paris, who is Mr. Wagner's companion, and the Rev. Dr. Patterson spoke in French to the French.

On Into the Afternoon.

The fervor of the morning extended into the afternoon. The meeting of the Bible Union was most successful in every respect.

Pastor Wagner told of the help, the solace, the earthly and heavenly gain that came from Holy Writ.

It was in the Sunday school that he found his greatest joy. The day of the vast auditorium was crowded to its capacity. Most of his talk here was a description of the work done in his Sunday school in Paris.

A Vile Disease

Contagious Blood Poison has wrecked more lives and caused more misery and suffering than all other diseases combined. Some are inclined to treat it lightly, but these soon learn that they have to deal with a powerful poison that is slowly but surely breaking down the constitution. Contagious Blood Poison not only mutes out punishment to the one who contracts it, but others may become innocent victims of the vile disease through inheritance. If your blood is tainted you may live to see your children battling with the same disease—puny and sickly, made miserable by disgusting sores and skin eruptions. Under the mercury and potash treatment all signs of affection may disappear, but leave off these minerals and you soon find out the poison is still alive and you are just as bad as ever. S. S. S. is the only antidote for Contagious Blood Poison. It destroys the virus completely without injuring the system. It is a vegetable remedy and we offer $1.00 for proof that it contains a single mineral ingredient. S. S. S. not only works the poison out of the blood thoroughly but restores vigor and strength to all parts of the system.

Write for special book on Contagious Blood Poison, describing the different stages and symptoms and containing much other interesting information about this most despicable of all diseases.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

Must Muzzle Papers Or Lose Forecasts

Prof. Moore Issues Ukase Against Nefarious Communities Publishing "Long Range" Predictions in Competition With Him.

If the local press in communities where we have stations established do not discontinue the publication of these long range forecasts we will seriously consider, at the central office, the question of holding back construction work in that locality, and withdrawing from the fields now occupied.—William L. Moore, chief of the Weather Bureau.

The foregoing statement was a part of the speech made recently by Mr. Moore in Peoria, Ill., at the convention of Weather Bureau officials in that city. When seen this morning, by a reporter for The Times, Mr. Moore declared the statement to be absolutely correct, but firmly declined to add anything whatever to the assertion.

Really Feels Hurt.

Mr. Moore would not say whether the power to discontinue these stations was vested wholly in him, but repeatedly stated that such was his stand, and so he had asserted himself at the recent convention.

The fight between Mr. Moore and "long range" forecasts has been of long standing, and Mr. Moore resented the action of these alien prophets to such an extent that a prominent forecaster declared the chief of the Weather Bureau had denied him access to the public records there.

So far the Weather Bureau has not published any "long range" forecasts, and the encroachment upon its field by outsiders has been keenly felt and bitterly opposed.

Several instances the forecasts by a Western scientist who has made his home in Washington for something over a year have proved correct, in the main, and were given out through the press statement from the Weather Bureau.

Doubt of Power.

It is believed to be in opposition to such occurrences that Prof. Moore has taken the stand embodied in his statement. Whether the Weather Bureau chief is empowered to withdraw weather stations from a town because one of its newspapers sees fit to publish what it regards as news is now an open question, so far as the public is concerned.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Agriculture, is out of town, and as he is the only official who ranks Mr. Moore in authority, nothing could be learned as to the propriety of such conduct. Mr. Moore is Acting Secretary of Agriculture and steadfastly refused to say whether he could or could not, as chief of the Weather Bureau, discontinue weather stations.

Mr. Norris thought the banner would be completed in four or five days.

"As soon after that as possible," he continued, "we are going to have a big Democratic meeting at 84 Pennsylvania Avenue. Speakers of national fame will address the gathering. At the end of the meeting we will hoist the banner across the Avenue. It will hang there until after election day, and if Parker and Davis are elected, will remain suspended until they pass beneath it on their way to the White House."

Custom of Years.

"This has been the custom in years past. The victorious party's banner always remains suspended until after the inauguration."

Commissioner West will pass on the application for the permit for the banner within a day or two.

Republican National Committeeman James L. Norris repeated today his former opinion that the Commissioners would undoubtedly allow the Democrats

"A National Matter."

"This is a national matter," he said this morning, "and differs from other cases of flag-flying, because it does not mean that those who hang this banner will be doing it for personal gain. It will be in no sense an advertising scheme, but will be merely an emblem of a national political contest."

Democratic National Committeeman James L. Norris repeated today his former opinion that the Commissioners would undoubtedly allow the Democrats

President Champion

OF PEACEFUL ARBITRATION

President Roosevelt, the Champion of Arbitration and Peace, was the subject of a sermon preached by the Rev. Dr. Frank M. Bristol, at the Metropolitan M. E. Church. He took his text from Isaiah 43: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." He said:

"The best minds and hearts of the world are organizing a movement against the unnatural thunder and lightning of war. We may congratulate ourselves as a people that our President has been invited to lead on the host of peace."

LAWYER DIES ON WAY HOME.

GENEVA, N. Y., Sept. 25.—Edgar D. Miller, a prominent attorney here, was found dead in the yard of a vacant house near the city limits. Death was due to heart disease. He went to East Geneva to get evidence in a law case and died while returning home.

On Into the Afternoon.

The fervor of the morning extended into the afternoon. The meeting of the Bible Union was most successful in every respect.

Pastor Wagner told of the help, the solace, the earthly and heavenly gain that came from Holy Writ.

It was in the Sunday school that he found his greatest joy. The day of the vast auditorium was crowded to its capacity. Most of his talk here was a description of the work done in his Sunday school in Paris.

COURT ADJUDGED HIM A BANKRUPT

Chief Justice Clabaugh Acts in Waggaman Case.

BELIEVES HE IS PERSECUTED

Defendant Says He Will Pay Dollar for Dollar of His Indebtedness.

Thomas E. Waggaman was today adjudged to be a bankrupt in the Supreme Court of the District.

The action of the court was announced by Chief Justice Clabaugh on the petition of the Columbia National Bank, Francis B. Gardner, and John Walter, Jr., creditors, who hold unsecured claims amounting to about $4,500.

Chief Justice Clabaugh, when he announced his decision declaring Waggaman a bankrupt, referred the case to Andrew J. Bradley, who, on Friday last, was named a referee in bankruptcy.

Mr. Waggaman was at the City Hall this morning a few minutes. He brought some papers which he left with Marshal Palmer, the temporary custodian of List No. 1 of notes and other securities.

Wants a Chance.

"If they give me a chance," said he, "I will pay dollar for dollar on what I owe."

From what he said, however, he seemed to think that the lawyers were pressing him more than he deserved.

The petition of the Columbia National Bank and others was called to the attention of Chief Justice Clabaugh by Joseph H. Sullivan, of counsel in the case. Mr. Sullivan asked that the case be referred to Edward S. McCalmont, the oldest of the referees in bankruptcy.

Charles C. Cole, who stated to the court that he is not counsel of record in the matter, although representing many creditors, said he had talked to many of the attorneys connected with the case, and they favored the appointment of Mr. Bradley. Mr. Cole remarked in conclusion that all that may be said of Mr. McCalmont in reference to the matter could very justly and properly be said of Mr. Bradley.

Final Argument.

F. A. Siddons, representing creditors who have begun proceedings both in the equity and bankruptcy branches of the court, opposed action being taken by the court in the case of the Columbia National Bank. He said that under the ordinary rule the other two cases, that of the three local banks and Mr. Agnes Gardner, should be disposed of before action could be taken in the proceedings last begun.

Chief Justice Clabaugh, however, held made by the alleged bankrupt or anyone that inasmuch as there is no contest in the Columbia Bank case, and also because the creditors in that proceeding are unsecured, there could no harm result in action being taken in that case. Mr. Siddons' remarks were referred to the court that under the order of things established by Justice Anderson in such cases the case would be sent to W. M. Hallam as referee, who he said would no doubt give perfect satisfaction to all concerned.

Chief Justice Clabaugh said that under different circumstances it would make no difference to him to which of the referees the case was referred. However, a large number of the members of the bar, he said, had recommended the appointment of Mr. Bradley, and for this reason he would name him as the referee in the case.

WOMAN HURT IN RUNAWAY;
HORSE SCARED BY AUTO

A horse attached to a buggy driven by Mrs. Catherine Erickson, shot at an automobile on the Conduit Road yesterday afternoon and ran away. He plunged over a steep embankment, throwing the woman out and injuring her.

Persons on the road went to her assistance and after helping her up captured the horse. The patrol wagon from the Seventh precinct was summoned to take the woman to some hospital, but she proceeded on her way before it arrived.
